Introduction

Golden Gate National Recreation Area

Park Description

Golden Gate National Recreation Area (GGNRA), a unit of the National Park Service, was established by an Act of Congress on October 27, 1972. The 80,000-acre park encompasses a great diversity of cultural and natural resources in and around the Bay Area of San Francisco, California. It includes Muir Woods National Monument and Fort Point National Historic Site.

The park holds almost five million three-dimensional and documentary artifacts dating from the time before European contact to the present. They are preserved and maintained for the public by the Division of Cultural Resources and Museum Management, which includes the Park Archives and Records Center (PARC).

Park Archives and Records Center

Historical Note

GGNRA and the sites within it have been collecting records since their inception. The PARC was established in 1994 to receive records and archival collections from the Army and the Presidio Army Museum after the closure of the Presidio of San Francisco as an Army base. The collections continue to grow through the donation of materials by private individuals, transfer of inactive park records by staff, and acquisition of relevant documentary materials.

Scope of Collections

The archival collections in the custody of GGNRA document the history and activity of the various sites and groups associated with the park, described in the park's Scope of Collection Statement (1997). Collections date from the early 1860's and the most recent items are usually about five years old.

The PARC contains U.S. Army and National Park Service facility records for the Presidio of San Francisco, forts and coast defense sites in the area, and various GGNRA sites. Subjects and sites documented include the United States Army (Bear Flag Revolt, Civil War, Spanish-American War, Mexican War, World War I, Army Air Service, Coast Artillery, Army medical facilities and issues, World War II, Army support during natural disasters, Viet Nam War, and Operation Desert Storm); Alcatraz Island (Army fortress, Army Disciplinary Barracks, U.S. Penitentiary, and Indian Occupation); the natural resources conservation movement resulting in the establishment of Muir Woods National Monument; agriculture in the Marin Headlands; Point Reyes Peninsula and Bolinas Lagoon areas; U.S. Lifesaving/Coast Guard Services; San Francisco Earthquake and Fire of 1906; Panama Pacific International Exposition of 1915; natural resources and environmental issues; and preservation of open space in the Bay Area. Also included in the PARC are many of the GGNRA administrative records that document the development and expansion of this park.

Visiting the PARC for Research

The PARC is located in an historic brick building, formerly a cavalry stable, on the Presidio of San Francisco. Collections and archives support services are available for walk-in research during open hours or by appointment. Please contact the PARC (see below) for the current schedule.

Copy Services

Black and white photocopy services for standard and oversize materials are available on-site. Color photocopying, photographic duplication, and duplication of other media are available by special arrangement. Researchers are charged for all duplicates on a cost-recovery basis.

Rights and Publications

Copies are provided under the Fair Use provisions of the Copyright Law (Title 17, U.S.C.). Researchers must complete a Permission to Publish Contract with the Park Archivist for any other intended use of these materials (such as publication or exhibit). Researchers should consult with staff regarding their needs for commercial or public use of materials.

Legal Status of Holdings

Many holdings of the PARC were acquired/transferred prior to the establishment of an archives program, and have little documentation on their provenance (or source). All materials received after 1994 have been accessioned and documented. If provenance cannot be determined, the PARC assumes that it owns the property rights, but does not own the copyright. Staff will provide assistance, but it is the responsibility of the researcher to acquire permission from the copyright holder to cite, quote, or reproduce collection materials.

Collections developed by or for government organizations or operations are in the public domain and may be used, cited, and quoted without restriction, provided they are properly credited to the PARC. The archives contain no national security classified materials.

Donations to the Collections

The PARC welcomes donations of a variety of historic materials that meet the criteria in the Scope of Collections Statement and do not duplicate existing holdings. Collections are maintained for research use in perpetuity; there is no guarantee that items will be exhibited. If you own materials that may be relevant to the themes of GGNRA and would like to deposit them in the PARC, please consult with an archivist.

How to Use This Finding Aid

This document contains information on the contents and significance of an archival collection. It includes descriptive information, repository information, collection history, biographical or historical information on creators of the collection, and a container or folder list of everything in the collection. After reviewing the finding aid, please discuss your specific needs with the archivist who will locate and retrieve the relevant materials.

How to Use the Collections

Please follow all rules and regulations regarding research, the use of the research facility, and the handling of collection materials. This will protect the collections so they continue to be available and usable for generations to come. If you notice anything that appears to be out of order or damaged, please notify a staff member.

Black Point Battery Archeological Field Records, 1982-1989

Scope and Content

Title

Black Point Battery archeological field records
Alternate title: Black Point Battery – Field records

Dates

1982-1989 (archeological finds date 1794-present)

Collection Number

GOGA 16050 (Accession number GOGA-01035)

Creator

GGNRA

Volume

10.2 linear feet
19 boxes of various size and 4 oversized folders

Scope Note

Description: This collection is comprised records created and collected during the 1982-1984 archaeological excavations at Black Point Battery (also referred to as Battery East and Battery West), Fort Mason in San Francisco, California. Built in 1864, Black Point Battery is the most completely preserved temporary Civil War battery located on the West Coast. The log books, site plans, reports, artifact documentation, and other records show the administrative history, process, and findings of the archaeological excavation project. Additional documents dating back to 1794 were collected by staff in order to research the site.

Significance: These records document the archaeological excavations and research on Black Point Battery, an important Civil War battery.

Related Records: Please note that this list is not comprehensive. It is intended as an aid to researchers. For more complete information, contact the reference archivist.

HistorySite Description

The Black Point Battery (also referred to as Battery East and Battery West) was buried under six to ten feet of earth and rock fill at Fort Mason, now a portion of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. Fort Mason is located on the shoreline of San Francisco Bay some three miles east of the Golden Gate and is on the northern tip of the San Francisco peninsula. Fort Mason is within the limits of the City and County of San Francisco and is administered by the United States Department of the Interior, National Park Service. Fort Mason was listed on the National Register of Historic Places as a historic district on April 23, 1979.

Site History

The early Spanish settlers named this strategic spot "Punta Medanos" (point jutting out of sand dunes). In 1797, "Bateria San Jose" (Battery of Saint Joseph) was constructed at the tip of the point. It was also known as "Battery at Yerba Buena" (the Spanish name for North Beach at that time). Five brass 8-pound cannon were put in hastily-dug earthworks, which a sentinel visited daily. The battery became neglected and by the time Mexico took over San Francisco in 1822, the site was known as Black Point because of the dark underbrush that covered everything (Hart 1965: 98).

Later the U.S. assumed control and designated Point San Jose, an area of about one hundred acres, a U.S. Military Reservation in 1850 (Hamilton and Bolce 1946: 10). The area was never developed, giving rise to the practice of "squatting." The War Department directed a battery be constructed on the point in 1863, leading to conflict between the Army and the civilian squatters. Most of the squatters were evicted, houses were demolished, and the tip of the Point was blasted away to create a flat plateau for the battery (Delgado 1985: 59). A series of legal disputes ensued and eventually the Supreme Court determined that the property belonged to the United States.

The 12-gun fortification was completed and armed by 1865. In addition to gun emplacements, the battery had underground timber magazines and five small "ready magazines" to give the cannon a quick and ready supply of ammunition in the heat of battle (Delgado 1985: 59). At the west end ("Battery West") were six ten-inch Rodman cannon. In the "East Battery" iron carriages for six 42-pound "James" guns had been installed (Delgado 1985: 59). These cannon and guns were never called upon for use against an enemy.

In 1882, the post was formerly dedicated as "Fort Mason" in the honor of Brevet Brigadier General Richard Barnes Mason, first military governor of California from 1847 to 1849. (Hamilton and Bolce 1946: 11-12). Despite its "temporary" designation, the new fortification was used well into the twentieth century.

Fear of attack by the Spanish fleet in 1898 brought new appropriations for "temporary" fortifications at Black Point. Adjacent to the still-armed western end of the old fortification a concrete emplacement was built for two "Eight-Inch Muzzle Loading Rifles" and a magazine was also built (Delgado 1985: 59).

No longer needed after the war ended, local construction and the fill it generated eventually obscured the battery site. Landscaping, barracks, and a picnic ground covered various parts during different periods. Black Point Battery was forgotten by all but a few.

Over a century after its founding, Fort Mason became the headquarters of the newly-created Golden Gate National Recreation Area (GGNRA) in 1972.

Excavation History

In the late 1970s, Park Ranger John A. Martini discovered the remnants of the Civil War battery. When plans were made to renovate the tip of Black Point for a new picnic area, GGNRA followed up on Martini's discoveries. In 1982, Park Archaeologist Martin Mayer, volunteer archaeologist Robert Bennett, and Park Historian James Delgado carefully excavated small areas of the site. They confirmed the battery site's historic and archaeological value, and found that it was deteriorating.

Archaeological excavations were made during the summers of 1982 and 1983 by a team of professional archaeologists, volunteers, and salaried local high school students. Primary staff members included Project Director Martin Mayer, volunteer archaeologist Robert Bennett, Field Director Gregory Brown and Laboratory Director Rebecca LaFontaine. Funding was provided by grants from San Francisco's Richard and Rhoda Goldman Fund, the NPS, and the Mary A. Crocker Trust of San Francisco.

The site of the battery was a flat, developed picnic ground with concrete walkways, lawn, and trees when archaeological research and excavation began in 1982. Thousands of cubic yards of soil exposed the western portion of the 1864 battery, and thousands of artifacts were recovered.

The battery walls were found to be surprisingly intact and artifacts unearthed included friction primers, parts of uniforms, firing mechanisms of Civil War muskets, bullets and cartridges, and mess kits and canteens. Insights were gained into contractor shortcuts in construction and remains of weapons provide perspectives on mid-nineteenth century building practices and on the capability of the armed men who defended the city (Delgado 1985: 76).

Reproduced timber revetments were installed on the walls to face the interior slopes of the earthworks, as was done in 1864. Lawn was planted to accentuate some features; double-hinged wooden doors were re-hung on the ready magazines; and a reproduction gun platform was installed to await a placement of a Civil War vintage Rodman cannon. Wayside exhibits with reproductions of historical photographs have been placed to describe the site's history to visitors. After almost three years of careful archaeological excavation, meticulous restoration, and much planning, the Black Point 1864 battery stands open to the air once again.

Collection and Series Description

Black Point Battery archeological field records, 1982-1989
GOGA 16050

This collection is comprised of the archaeological field records created and collected during the 1982-1984 excavations at Black Point Battery (also referred to as Battery East and Battery West), Fort Mason in San Francisco, California. Built in 1864, Black Point Battery is the best-preserved temporary Civil War battery on the West Coast. It is a contributing element to the listing of Fort Mason in the National Register of Historic Places. The majority of records in this collection were created from 1982-1985 and these are primarily the archaeological unit level records taken from the duration of the excavation project. Materials collected for archaeological and historical research on this project date back to 1794.

These records appear to be complete. They provide insight into every stage and process of the project, including preliminary research, compliance, research design, excavation, archaeological field recording, site-mapping, surveying, photography, artifact inventorying, funding and grants, conservation, artifact illustration, site restoration, administration, management, and final reports for publication.

Reports and Research Materials, 1794-1989

Volume: 0.6 linear feet (Box 1, folder 1 to Box 2, folder 3)
Arrangement: By subject
Formats: Histories
Maps
Reports
Research (document genres)

Description: This record series is comprised of documents relating to reports on the Black Point Battery archaeological excavation project, research design, similar projects at other Civil War sites throughout the U.S., the Spanish occupation, and historical perspective on local fortifications. The information was collected from 1982-1989 and relates to the history of the area back to 1794. The documents are primarily research reports. Histories, research files, and maps are also found in this series.

Unit Level Excavation Records, 1982-1984

Volume: 3.6 linear feet (Box 2, folder 4 to Box 7, folder 13)
Arrangement: By subject (archaeological unit level/area)
Formats: Drawings
Lists
Logs (records)
Plans (maps)
Reports

Condition: Some archaeological unit level records, archaeological field notes, and logbooks are lightly soiled

Description: These records describe the findings in the archeological units examined during the project to excavate Black Point Battery at Fort Mason in California. This series comprises the bulk of the collection. The excavations of the 1864 battery and the 1898 battery were made in carefully measured-off areas, or units. These records document the archaeological field recording methods and techniques used on excavations as well as the findings of the excavations. The documents are primarily archaeological unit level records, and also include drawings, plans, and lists.

Artifact Documentation Records, 1982-1984

Volume: 1.2 linear feet (Box 8 to Box 9; Box 20; media storage)
Arrangement: By subject (artifact classification/type)
Formats: Audio cassettes
Drawings
Records
Videotape

Description: This record series documents artifacts excavated from the marked-off archaeological units at Black Point Battery at Fort Mason in California. The documents are primarily archaeological unit level records, and drawings.

Artifact Conservation Survey Records, 1974-1985

Volume: 0.9 linear feet (Box 10 to Box 11, folder 9)
Arrangement: By subject (artifact classification/type, priority listing)
Formats: Inventories
Lists
Records
Surveys

Description: This record series is comprised of conservation survey evaluations, lists, inventories, and unit level records which relate to artifacts discovered during archaeological excavations at Black Point Battery at Fort Mason in California. These records are categorized by conservation priority type and by artifact type.

Various Field Records

Volume: 2.1 linear feet (Box 11, folder 10 to Box 15, folder 4)
Arrangement: By subject (artifact classification, personal name)
Formats: Field notes
Lists
Logs
Records

Condition: Some archaeological unit level records, archaeological field notes, and logbooks are lightly soiled

Description: This record series is comprised of various field records pertaining to the Black Point Battery archaeological excavations at Fort Point in California. The focus of this series is on the recording procedures used by the excavation team. The documents are primarily archaeological unit level records, logbooks, archaeological field notes, and tabulations. They compliment the records in the Unit Level Excavation Records series, which were used separately.

Administrative Records, 1982-1989

Volume: 2.1 linear feet (Box 15, folder 6 to Box 18)
Arrangement: By subject
Formats: Agreements
Correspondence
Inventories
Lists
Memoranda
Schedules (time plans)

Description: This record series is comprised of the administrative records of the Black Point Battery project at Fort Mason in California. Personnel, public administration, and management are documented in correspondence, plans, inventories, lists, schedules, estimates, memoranda, and agreements.

Site plans, 1911-1984

Volume: 0.2 linear feet (4 oversize folders)
Arrangement: By subject
Formats: Drawings
Maps
Plans (maps)
Technical drawings

Description: This record series is comprised of the site-maps/plans of the Black Point Battery archaeological excavations at Fort Mason in California. Drawings, maps, plans, and engineering drawings show the site before, during, and after the archaeological excavation and restoration project.
